

IN THE GLOAMING

Lyrics by Anne Hills • Music Allen Power

I'll remember you in the gloaming in the shimmering edge of the day out where the tall grass touches the sand and the sand reaches out to the bay or in the cathedral of cedar stars tangled into your hair you and the stars were the world to me then so I will remember you there we would stand at the top of the earth with the future stretched out beneath the fields and the brambles looked tiny and harmless we knew no deceit before we tumbled and bruised our way back tearing the wings off our feet

I'll remember you by the water sun setting deep in your eyes your brown hands full of the gifts of the sea reflecting the fathomless skies or heavy your head on my shoulder sorrow and laughter entwined outlined by shadow in memories so bright and there in the last light defined

I'll remember you in the gloaming

©2020 Raven Heart Music (ASCAP) / Night Wind Music (BMI) All rights reserved